

PRIME CONTRACT EXPIRATION – COST/CREI

- (a) This Contract may be assigned, novated, or transferred to a successor-in-interest, a successor contractor to operate the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, or the Government.
- (b) The Contractor shall provide to JPL a report with all costs estimated to be incurred under this Contract through September 28, 2003, 45-days in advance thereof and a second report with actual costs incurred through September 28, 2003, within 45-days thereafter. Reported costs are subject to final rate audit and potential adjustment. Invoices for September 2003 shall coincide with September 28, not 30. Costs can be reported at the top WBS level. The purpose of the cost report is to enable JPL to allocate and account costs under the current and anticipated successor JPL/NASA prime contract. Backup financial records and invoices should be retained for a reasonable period of time following the Contract end date.
